ePAP accreditation ensures adherence to data processing standards and compliance with security infrastructure and integrity requirements for all e-Prescribing transactions

Albany, NY – June 9, 2014 – Daw Systems, Inc., a medical software developer of Electronic Prescribing and Electronic Medical Record (EMR) technology, announced today it has achieved full accreditation with the e-Prescribing Accreditation Program (ePAP) from the Electronic Healthcare Network Accreditation Commission (EHNAC). EHNAC's ePAP accreditation demonstrates the operational integrity of companies that use e-prescribing, by affirming compliance with industry regulations and all necessary standards for transaction timeliness, security and privacy with new prescriptions and renewals.

Through the consultative review process, EHNAC evaluated Daw Systems' electronic prescribing and fax-based prescribing transactions in the areas of confidentiality enforcement, level-of-service and escalation procedures, outcome-related metrics, security infrastructures and the ability to comply with industry-standard data formats. The thorough accreditation process demonstrates adherence to strict standards and participation in the comprehensive, objective evaluation of the organization's business.

"The growth of e-prescribing in recent years has reached a strong uptick not only due to meaningful use measures, but because of the industry's critical need for advancement of care and transitioning to electronic health records and processes," says Lee Barrett, executive director of EHNAC. "Privacy, security and confidentiality continue to top the list of concerns for solution providers and their customers.
